Boston,
Nov. 4 }
1889

Dear Bro. Hazard:

Yours of the 1st is before me. I have been obliged to sadly neglect my private correspondence of late, as I have been laid up again
with pneumonia; but I am much better now - enough so to be about, although my cough has not subsided.

You wish me to give the names of the Bros. Davenport⁽²⁾ (mediums,) — ^{and good ones too,} Geo and William their father lately passed over the river to the better country.

I have in my library their Biography — an English edition, published in 1864, in London, by Saunders, Otley &
Co., 66 Brook St. (W). pp. 360.

We are being kicked, as usual, by Spiritualists, who want to boss us, but can't — as well as by enemies of the Cause. I am getting tired of this sort of life.
Do you wonder?

I am always pleased to hear from you.
Thomas R. comes to see us occasionally. He is, he says, more wide awake than ever before.
Very truly yrs — L. Colby
